COMPLIMENTARY CHILD CARE AVAILABLE!
GOALS
This activity will discuss the symptoms, diagnosis, and treatment of common gastrointestinal and liver diseases that afflict women more commonly and differently than men. This activity also aims to discuss strategic solutions to barriers that female gastroenterologists face in their career development. It will result in improved care of female patients with GI illnesses and encourage the career development of women in the field of gastroenterology.

LEARNING OBJECTIVES
At the conclusion of this education activity, participants will be able to:
• Identify specific gastrointestinal and liver diseases that afflict women more commonly or in a different way than men;
• Describe the unique presentations and complications of specific gastrointestinal and liver diseases that afflict women more commonly or in a different way than men;
• Discuss required gender-specific management strategies of gastrointestinal and liver diseases that address the needs of the women patients more appropriately;
• Identify specific challenges that women gastroenterologists face in their career;
• Determine strategies that can help women gastroenterologists overcome barriers in the advancement of their careers and promote success in their chosen paths.

OUTCOMES
The educational information presented in this activity will add to participants’ knowledge about gastrointestinal diseases that afflict women more commonly and how to recognize and manage them in women. It will improve their competence and performance as they apply the knowledge in their own practices, thus translating into better patient outcomes.

The career development topics will help female gastroenterologists navigate challenges faced in their career, whether in private practice or academia, to allow them to progress further and be successful in their chosen paths.

TARGET AUDIENCE
This activity is designed for physicians and other healthcare professionals interested in the treatment of women with gastrointestinal illnesses.

DISCLOSURE DECLARATIONS

As a provider accredited by the ACCME, The University of Chicago Pritzker School of Medicine asks everyone who is in a position to control the content of an education activity to disclose all relevant financial relationships with any commercial interest. This includes any entity producing, marketing, re-selling, or distributing health care goods or services consumed by or used on patients. The ACCME defines “relevant financial relationships” as financial relationships in any amount occurring within the past 12 months, including financial relationships of a spouse or life partner that could create a conflict of interest. Mechanisms are in place to identify and resolve any potential conflict of interest prior to the start of the activity.

Additionally, The University of Chicago Pritzker School of Medicine requires authors to identify investigational products or off-label uses of products regulated by the US Food and Drug Administration, at first mention and where appropriate in the content.
