CONFERENCE DESCRIPTION

The University of Chicago Symposium on Acute and Chronic Pancreatitis will introduce participants to the multifaceted field of pancreatology, emphasizing the critical role of medical, interventional, and surgical therapies. It will broaden their understanding of pancreatitis, encompassing pathophysiology, fluid and nutrition strategies in acute pancreatitis, and the multidisciplinary approach essential for managing pancreatic complications and stratifying risk for pancreatic cancer. Engaging patient perspectives is also critically needed to better understand their priorities and foster a collaborative approach to pain management in pancreatitis. To highlight the importance of this engagement, the symposium will feature a panel including patients, caregivers, and experts in pain management, in which they will explore patient experiences with pain, well-being, and perceived barriers to pancreatitis care.

Through expert-led sessions and case studies, this activity will provide participants with the knowledge and skills necessary to address the diverse needs of individuals with pancreatitis. By fostering a deep understanding and breadth of knowledge in pancreatitis management, it will empower healthcare professionals to deliver optimal care.

The Symposium on Acute and Chronic Pancreatitis is a day-long educational activity with five program themes. The 2025 program will include sessions related to diagnostic evaluation for idiopathic pancreatitis, fluid and nutritional strategies in acute pancreatitis, endoscopic and surgical approaches to pancreatic necrosis and collections, therapies for intraductal stones, pancreatic enzyme replacement therapy, and multimodal approaches to pain management. By creating a symposium centered on pancreatitis diagnosis and treatments, this symposium will attract clinicians from various backgrounds, clinical interests, and aims to address evidence and clinical gaps related to medical and procedural therapies in pancreatitis.

TARGET AUDIENCE

This activity is designed for gastroenterologists, surgeons, interventional endoscopists, anesthesiologists, psychologists, hospitalists, internists, advanced practice nurses, physician assistants, trainees, registered dietitians, and nurses dedicated to caring for patients with acute and chronic pancreatitis.

LEARNING OBJECTIVES

After this activity, participants will be able to:

- Detail how to complete the etiologic evaluation for acute and chronic pancreatitis with appropriate diagnostic testing.
- Describe how to implement evidence-based practices for the medical management of patients hospitalized with acute pancreatitis.
- Highlight the latest advances in the endoscopic management of pancreatic necrosis and collections.
- Discuss surgical approaches for recurrent acute pancreatitis, refractory chronic pancreatitis, and pancreatic cancer.
- Recall how to diagnose and treat exocrine and endocrine pancreatic insufficiency.
- State how to address the multifactorial nature of pain in chronic pancreatitis with different therapeutic options.

ACCREDITATION AND CREDIT DESIGNATION

PHYSICIAN CREDIT

The University of Chicago Pritzker School of Medicine is accredited by the Accreditation Council for Continuing Medical Education (ACCME) to provide continuing medical education for physicians.

The University of Chicago Pritzker School of Medicine designates this live activity for a maximum of 5.75 AMA PRA Category 1 Credits™. Physicians should claim only the credit commensurate with the extent of their participation in the activity.

NURSING CREDIT

University of Chicago Medicine is accredited as a provider of nursing continuing professional development by the American Nurses Credentialing Center's Commission on Accreditation.

Participants who successfully complete the entire activity and complete an evaluation form will earn 5.75 contact hours.

AMERICAN BOARD OF INTERNAL MEDICINE MOC PART II CREDIT

Successful completion of this CME activity, which includes participation in the evaluation component, enables the participant to earn up to 5.75 MOC points in the American Board of Internal Medicine's (ABIM) Maintenance of Certification (MOC) program. Participants will earn MOC points equivalent to the amount of CME credits claimed for the activity. It is the CME activity provider's responsibility to submit participant completion information to ACCME for the purpose of granting ABIM MOC credit.

OTHER PARTICIPANT CREDIT

Other participants will receive a Certificate of Participation. For information on the applicability and acceptance of Certificates of Participation for educational activities certified for AMA PRA Category 1 Credit™ from organizations accredited by the ACCME, please consult your professional licensing board.
